Recording high definition video is never simple. FlashBack Pro takes the guesswork out of recording your screen by letting you choose your screen area, voice, and webcam. It keeps you organized by letting you view and share your recordings all in a single interface. It also gives you instant playback and easy editing so that you can focus on what you are saying instead of worrying about the small details. In a nutshell, FlashBack Pro allows you to capture your screen as you record it! Features: High quality screen recording at resolutions up to 4K by a webcam or a microphone Mark your favorite windows, areas, web sites, games, or any other screen content into one timeline Record in full-screen mode and in window mode (one screen or multiple screens) Record directly with a webcam and edit your video from the screen Recordings can be saved to YouTube, Facebook, and Vimeo Create as many recordings as you want and upload them instantly Recording Screen with Apple QuickTime Player Screen recordings we've all witnessed them while looking for tutorials. While they may look like an antiquated method of showing how to do things, it's by far the most effective when it comes to clarity and comprehensibility. Of course, recording your screen wouldn't be possible without dedicated software, and QuickTime Pro provides the functionality required to do so efficiently. Specify the area of your screen to record, use your microphone and webcam, and edit the footage thoroughly in the dedicated player. A powerful tool When it comes to recording a clip, the provided tool set makes sure there is no shortage of options for users to take advantage of. Per your preferences, you can designate an area or a window of the screen to be recorded, and you can use your microphone for a more thorough presentation. If you have a multi-monitor setup, running in the Full Screen Recording mode will get the app to prompt you to choose which display to record. What's more, inserting your webcam into the feed is also possible, and minimizing or changing the PC sounds can also be done directly through the recorder. There's also a timer function available, and through it, users can schedule their recordings. Edit through the Player Upon finishing the screen recording, you'll be taken to the app's Player interface. In essence, this is where you'll be editing your clip: the layout is akin to the one you'd find on most video editors, so you shouldn't have any trouble operating

So far I've been using the Erase Layer tool and the mask looks like this: From what I've read using this tool should make the hole as large as the layer it is masking. Is there some kind of filter I should be using instead? Here's a link to the image file:
