PowerPoint - A presentation maker, which allows you to create slides with transitions, graphics, and animations.Q: Core Data, one entity and multiple fetch requests. Converting to NSFetchedResultsController I have one main entity, used in Core Data, let's call it TheEntity, and about 10 nested entities. I also have about 1,000,000 records in the database. I want to fetch some of those records from Core Data but only one at a time. So, I have this fetch request: NSSortDescriptor *sortDescriptor = [[NSSortDescriptor alloc] initWithKey:@"name" ascending:NO]; NSFetchRequest *request = [[NSFetchRequest alloc] init]; [request setEntity:[NSEntityDescription entityForName:@"TheEntity" inManagedObjectContext:moc]]; [request setSortDescriptors:[NSArray arrayWithObject:sortDescriptor]]; [request setFetchBatchSize:20]; NSArray *names = [moc executeFetchRequest:request error:nil]; Now, I want to get the next batch of names that are not yet fetched. I could do this in a loop, but I was wondering if there was a better way. I can also convert this to an NSFetchRequest and use an NSPredicate to filter out the names I've already fetched. I'd like to use the fetch request version because it's a one-liner and it looks cleaner. But I'm wondering if there's a way to set a predicate in the original fetch request. A: If I understand you correctly, you want to fetch 1 object per request instead of all objects from the entire result set. Then you can set the FetchBatchSize to 1. I don't think there is any clean way to do this with a single fetch request. If you are getting a huge amount of data, you could consider using an NSFetchedResultsController instead. Q: Does FileReader read chunks when sent in

OfficeSuite Plus comes with a standard set of functions so you can start using it straight away without having to buy add-ons. This software has been downloaded over 14.6 million times and has been certified by our trusted users. This is an office suite that includes all the most needed and commonly used office functions (including writer, spreadsheet, presentation, database, etc). The users report using its functions and have good things to say about it. Also, it comes with templates (which make it easy to make slides, presentations, letters, PDFs, etc). The software has been downloaded and reviewed by over 20,000 users and has an overall approval rating of 96% Review: OfficeSuite is a simple but comprehensive toolset which includes the basic functions you need for word processing, spreadsheet editing, presentation making and PDF conversion. For all intents and purposes, it doesn't do anything particularly spectacular or creative (e.g. it doesn't let you edit or create templates in a creative fashion, does not include any sort of drawing functionality), but it does have a very clean and easy to use interface and you're likely to find all the basic functions you need. It is well-suited for people who have a basic set of needs and are looking for a tool that has everything they need (with perhaps the exception of templates and such) OfficeSuite's biggest weakness is that it really tries to force you to buy the add-ons that create more advanced features, such as plugins, templates, etc. This makes it a bit of a hard sell. We like the clean interface and the basic functionality, but the cost of moving up to the level of the add-ons is a little bit too high. OfficeSuite is a suite of office applications. It includes a word
